Interlocking Paver Installation Estimate Checklist

Experienced, honest and professional interlocking/permeable paver contractors are hard to find. I know this because after almost 2 decades in the business and several years running AllAboutDriveways.com, I've spoken to hundreds of interlocking/permeable paver contractors from all around the country and many of them want to steer as clear from me as they can! They don't want to be held accountable for anything! Their only motivation is profits! As a matter of fact, as you go through this checklist they'll be amazed at your vast amount of knowledge about pavers and may even ask you how you know so much! When you tell them... "I learned from AllAboutDriveways.com", as history has proven, they may very well walk away from the job without even giving you an estimate! Why? Simply because they know they can't trick you or rip you off! Only the honest and ethical companies want to be associated with AllAboutDriveways.com!

If you take this list seriously, I can assure you it will be well worth the investment of your time!

#1) Always get at least 2 to 3 estimates! ☐

Always get at least 2 to 3 estimates before making any decisions on whom to choose for your project. Of all of the complaints we receive about contractors, they usually start off with "The contractor told me we'll give you a great deal if we can get started today"! And most of the time... that was the only estimate they acquired!

#2) Is the company a member of AllAboutDriveways.com? ☐

If they say yes:

Don't just take their word for it*! Visit our website at https://www.allaboutdriveways.com/pros/ and verify they are in fact a member! Search for their company name by phone number. Be sure their company name and phone number matches EXACTLY what's on our website. There should be no variation of their name in any way. As an example, we had a member whose company name was "xxxxxx Asphalt & Concrete* Specialists*" and a company who claimed they were a member said they were "xxxxxx Asphalt & Concrete* Services*". Unfortunately... that homeowner ended up losing over $6K! Had the homeowner verified the company's membership, they would have easily identified they were* not a member of AllAboutDriveways.com! If they do not appear in search results... they are NOT a member!!

If they are in fact a verified member:

I take what I do very seriously and I do more to prescreen contractors than ANY OTHER WEBSITE OUT THERE that I am aware of and I will NEVER recommend a company I don't trust on my referral list! PERIOD!

If the company that has given you an estimate is listed as one of my Official Registered Members, I trust them and I KNOW YOU CAN TOO! If any of the companies that have provided you with an estimate are in fact a verified member... there is no need to put them through the scrutiny of the rest of this checklist!

Why not? See what contractors must endure to be listed as one of my Official Members!

If the company is NOT a member:

Be sure to add a checkmark to each and every question on this list! Don't feel uncomfortable asking these questions and don't let ANY CONTRACTOR intimidate you or make you feel as if you're being too picky! After all... it's YOUR hard earned money that you're spending on your driveway. You have every right to do your due diligence!

#3) How long has the company been in business? ☐

This is a great question to ask but by no means can you just take their word for it. There are a lot of companies out there who say they've been in business for much longer than they actually have been. They may tell how long they've been IN the business as an answer to that question! I've been in the driveway business for 15 years... but AllAboutDriveways.com has only been in business for about 4 years! In today's internet age, a little bit of investigation online will reveal whether they're telling the truth or not! Do they have a website? Can you find reviews about their company and if you can, do the phone numbers match? On the other hand, just because the company is a new company doesn't necessarily mean that they are not experienced enough or trustworthy. At least 1 year in business is one of our requirements to list a company on our website. Consider making that one of your rules also.

#4) Is the contractor/company supplying you with a written proposal? ☐

I can't tell you how many times I've had a homeowner contact me to complain about their contractor and they have nothing in writing. Do not accept anything but a clear and concise proposal that has all aspects of the job described in detail and is printed and signed by both you and the contractor before allowing any work to begin. Everything discussed should be specified on the agreement or added to the agreement as an addendum. This protects you and the contractor. Do not accept verbal agreements. With a written agreement, the contractor knows exactly what you're expecting and you know exactly what you're getting and the price you're paying for it! Do not accept a typed up email as your agreement! Reputable companies will provide you with a written proposal on company letterhead. Written proposals will also help you compare apples to apples with other contractors that are bidding on your project!

#5) Will the contractor/company be subcontracting the entire job, parts of the job, 1 part of the job or is the job performed all "in house"? ☐

While on rare occasions a reputable contractor/company may have to subcontract a specialized portion of a job, NEVER do business with a company that subcontracts the entire job or the majority of the job. If problems arise... who's responsible and who's going to honor the warranty becomes a hot potato! No one wants to take responsibility for any mistakes or issues and you get left with a problematic driveway and a warranty that really doesn't exist! Cut out the middleman and do business with companies that perform the work "in house" with their own equipment and full time, experienced employees.

#5) Continued -

Instances where a paver contractor may need to subcontract a portion of your job may be:

Breaking, removing, hauling and disposing of an existing concrete, asphalt or pavers.
Hiring laborers for unskilled labor work: Usually no more than 1 person, not an entire crew.

#6) Will the contractor/company be excavating, grading and installing a solid base material prior to installing the pavers? ☐

Excavating, installing a solid base material and fine grading: While it's not entirely uncommon for a contractor to install an average paver driveway in a 7 day period or less, some contractors love the "get in and get out fast" approach to maximize profits and will not prepare your driveway properly before installing the pavers. This includes excavating the existing soil and installing a structural or base material to stabilize the soil and grading the driveway for proper water drainage. Make sure the contractor excavates the driveway, installs a solid base material, fine grades for proper water drainage and specifies a thickness of the base material being installed. Remember a driveway is only as goods as the base it's being installed on!

#7) Will the contractor/company be installing sand on top of the base material prior to installing the pavers? ☐

After the base material is installed, a layer of sand should be installed on top of the base material prior to installing the pavers! Make sure the contractor specifies an average thickness of sand being installed. Again... a paver driveway is only as goods as what it's being installed on!

#8) Will the contractor/company be applying a weed inhibitor prior to installing the pavers? ☐

While a weed inhibitor is not required on an interlocking paver job that has an adequate base material installed, it can be an added benefit that will minimize vegetation from growing up through the pavers.

#9) Is the contractor/company indicating the area in square feet or square yards on the proposal? ☐

How do you know what you're getting if the contractor doesn't indicate the square feet or square yards on the proposal? All proposals should include the total area of interlocking pavers by either square feet or square yards in writing*! Don't allow a contractor to indicate "from the barn to the garage" or "from the garage to the street". Proposals should always indicate the total area in either square feet or square yards.*

#10) Does the contractor/company offer a warranty? ☐

The standard warranty in the industry is 1 year on workmanship and up to a lifetime warranty on the pavers. Be sure to get your warranty in writing on the proposal*! Also, don't confuse the warranty on the* workmanship with the warranty on the paves. THESE ARE SEPARATE! Some contractors/companies will mislead you into thinking that you have a lifetime warranty on the driveway itself. There is a difference!

Ask your contractor for the warranty on the workmanship and the warranty on the pavers. Make them put it in writing on your proposal/contract! Remember however, a warranty is only as good as the stability of the company that's offering it! What good is the warranty if the company is not stable enough to be around to honor it if something goes wrong?

#11) Is the contractor/company trying to sell you an "added warranty"? ☐

Some contractors will attempt to sell an added warranty if you pay additional fees to have them seal the new paver driveway after completion. There is a lot of controversy surrounding the sealing of interlocking pavers.

Be sure to watch my video series "The Most Common Ways Interlocking Paver Installation Contractors Rip Us Off And How To Avoid Them".

#12) Is the contractor/company requiring money down? ☐

I'm not a fan of contractors asking for money up front. However, there are some occasions when a contractor/company requires 50% down and the rest on completion. The ONLY way I would EVER give company money up front is just like this: Tell the contractor that the moment his trucks, employees, equipment and the pavers arrive, you will pay them their required money down. Some contractors may be concerned that a check can be canceled. If that's the case, tell them you will pay them in cash with a signed receipt! Be sure and get signed cash receipt!

This way the company doesn't have to wait for a check to clear, they're comfortable with getting started and you are guaranteed they show up to do the job and don't take off with your money!

There's virtually zero risk for either one of you! That's it! No other way PERIOD!

#13) Is the contractor asking to be paid personally rather than a company name? ☐

Just about every complaint about an unethical contractor I receive, inevitably the payment/check was made to the contractor rather than to a company. While this is not a sure sign of an unethical contractor, it should raise some red flags as it may mean they are not a registered business! I would never do business with a company that is not a legitimately state registered company.
